

Save antibiotics for cows that are infected.

Your vet can help you reduce antibiotic use on your farm.

At dry-off time this means:

Use dry cow antibiotics to treat cows that are likely infected, as indicated by SCC and mastitis history.

Teat sealants can be used to protect all cows, alone or in combination with antibiotics

Appropriate antibiotic use helps control spread of infection and reduces animal pain and distress.

We recognise that antibiotics are important for the treatment of bacterial infections.

We support responsible use of antibiotics to ensure their effectiveness in future and meet market expectations.

This position is supported by:

